SALEM COMPCON -2023

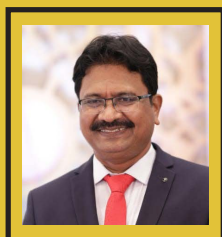

*“Surgery is never perfect
But that should never stop a surgeon’s pursuit of perfection”*
- DR SAMIR TANEJA

Complications during surgery can catch even the senior most consultant off guard at times, create a lot of stress and give sleepless nights. Hence optimizing surgical outcomes should be valued as a lifelong exercise for the surgeon. Primum non nocere. While being cautious is essential, surgeon must take on difficult challenging cases, when the need arises. Hence a surgeon has to continuously refine one’s approach and technique through observation of fellow colleagues in person or in workshops, by trial and error, and through experience (from other’s experience also). It may augur well to remember that “for the surgeon the surgery may be a routine but as far as the patient is concerned, he has given control completely to you and only one outcome matters”

So, this CME “COMPLICATIONS IN UROLOGY” has been designed keeping the above goals in mind. The faculty are well known with skill, knowledge and experience to make this a fruitful learning experience. On behalf of “Salem Urology Trust” I request you all to come, involve, learn and move forward with more clarity and confidence
